it s a big world, but make of it what you will," professors need to stick together, am I right?" He winked. "Aw, it? Is it? It is? It is? It is?" He let go of me. "We freelance gesture quickly before slapping it down on me again, saying, "Is pushing it rhythmically, sometimes taking his hand off to held my shoulder firmly, sometimes shaking it, sometimes wallow in self-pity, that's not what it's all about, is it? Is it?" He in the light that only you were made to live in. Don't just shoulder. "You need to believe in yourself, try and see yourself just need some confidence, that's all." He put his hand on my suspiciously, "Dusk is coming on. Say, don't look like that, you what I mean, if I'm headed that way." He darted his head up, Sahara next, though I'd like to take a microlight, if you know of his fist. "You would have loved it, mate! I think I'll go to the He laughed heartily, slamming the pipe loudly against the butt heard of them? I flew it from the city! You should have seen it!" flew here on?" He smacked his knee. "A fiberglass balloon? Ever should go back to it, it's a fine profession. You know what I professor written all over me! I'm definitely of that breed. You counts. By George, it's true. Look at mel I've got freelance Exploring, educating folks in all of these parts, I'm sure that in. "Interesting you should say that, since I'm one of those, too. "Freelance professor, eh?" he said, sticking the pipe back

"So you're really a freelance professor, too?" I said. "I thought I made that up."

"No way," he said. "I've been a freelance professor for a long time, mate. Remember? I was freelance professorin' as far chasing girls, you remember? I was freelance professorin' as far back as then, actually!"

"Oh, wow," I said. "Well that's longer than I have." This was probably unnecessarily sarcastic. There's no reason to talk like this. "What's your name?"
